experiencing a shortness of breath, difficulty breathing, a dry cough, a temperature at or above 100.4, chills, sore throat, body aches, headaches, congestion or runny nose, nausea or vomiting, diarrhea, or have lost their sense of taste or smell, or if they have concerns that they may have been exposed to the virus. Employees and judicial officers must also report if they have a household member or a visitor staying in their household who is experiencing coronavirus (COVID-19) symptoms.

Voluntary Testing:

- Employees and judicial officers, regardless of vaccination status; shall notify their supervisor or manager prior to entering the workplace if they voluntarily received a coronavirus (COVID-19) test and are awaiting the results (as opposed to obtaining a coronavirus test because of concerns regarding illness or exposure, no matter how remote).
- Management should ascertain if there is an underlying cause for concern, or if contact with a possible positive case occurred resulting in the voluntary test.
- If the judicial officer or employee or other person wishing to enter the courthouse or judicial building engages in routine testing, such as when required by their employer, medical provider, or otherwise, the Chief Judge or designee may allow the person to enter the courthouse or judicial facility based on the specific circumstances. If the employee or judicial officer is not fully vaccinated as defined in the Supreme Court protocols and in the definitions below, then an exception must be approved using the NMJB ERT Screening Exception to Enter Courthouse or Judicial Building form, with a copy of the approval sent to the ERT.
- In such cases, the person must report any new or changing symptoms immediately and follow the requirements of COVID testing and symptoms.

Because COVID-19 is so contagious and can be spread by people who do not have any apparent symptoms, people who have tested positive for COVID-19 and people who have had close contact with someone who tested positive for COVID-19 should physically separate themselves from other people.

1. SYMPTOMATIC:

If an employee or judicial officer, regardless of vaccination status; is experiencing coronavirus, (COVID-19) related symptoms they must immediately:

- Receive a coronavirus (COVID-19) test by an approved NMDOH testing site, using appropriate and approved NMDOH tests. DOH approved tests include home test kits mailed to a judicial officer or employee from an approved provider sponsored or in coordination with the DOH. Approved site locations in this context include the judicial officer or employee's residence.
- Engage in a period of self-isolation (duration outlined below and dependent upon whether the employee or judicial officer tests while symptomatic).
- Work from home during the period of self-isolation to the extent that work can be performed remotely, and with the permission of the chief judge, administrative authority, or designee.

- Cross-Tracing and Contact: Management must determine all employees or judicial officers who are not fully vaccinated that came in contact with the possible positive employee came in contact with within the preceding ten (10) days, and send those employees and judicial officers home to telework until the employee's test results are returned (contact is defined as less than six (6) feet for more than three (3) minutes), and have them immediately contact the DOH to receive a coronavirus (COVID-19) test.
- If the judicial officer or employee had contact with other court staff either within or outside of the courthouse or judicial building, management should determine whether violating the Supreme Court Order or corresponding protocols, which include ensuring appropriate social and physical distancing warrants corrective measures or communications.
- A judicial officer or employee who is teleworking should report experiencing any of these symptoms, and report any household member who is experiencing these symptoms, to their supervisor and Human Resources immediately if the worker has been at the courthouse or judicial building ten (10) days prior to first experiencing the coronavirus (COVID-19) symptoms. The onsite performance of job duties is the presumptive working arrangement for all judicial officers and employees.
- The CEO or their designee must immediately report the potential or confirmed coronavirus (COVID-19) case to the ERT using the electronic Google Form, and if a positive, case must submit to the NMED Rapid Response Team within four (4) hours of initial notification and forward the confirmation of submittal to AOC HRD. A follow-up report is required using the electronic Google form once the test results are received.
 - ❖ An employee or judicial officer, regardless of vaccination status; who begins exhibiting symptoms before they arrive at work, they may not go to work and must notify their immediate supervisor, manager, and Human Resources immediately.
 - ❖ Employees experiencing a medical emergency should call 911, and notify the operator of their symptoms.

2. NEGATIVE TEST WHILE SYMPTOMATIC:

If the employee or judicial officer is tested while symptomatic, and the test is negative for the coronavirus (COVID-19), the employee may:

- Return to work after they have been symptom-free for 72-hours without the use of fever-reducing medication, and
- Are able to pass the daily screening questions.
 - ❖ The contacts reported by the symptomatic employee may also return to the workplace.

- ❖ Management should determine whether violating the Supreme Court Order or corresponding protocols, which include ensuring appropriate social and physical distancing warrants corrective measures or communications.
- ❖ The CEO or their designee must immediately report the test results to the ERT using the electronic Google form.

Employees or judicial officers denied access to a courthouse or other building due to symptoms that are related to a CHRONIC ILLNESS OR CONDITION may follow the guidance under HEALTH SCREENING.

3. NEGATIVE TEST WHILE ASYMPTOMATIC:

If the employee or judicial officer who is not fully vaccinated is tested when they are no longer experiencing symptoms, or are asymptomatic, and the test is negative for the coronavirus (COVID-19) the employee must:

- Must Self-isolate for ten (10) days following the onset of the symptoms, and may not return to the workplace until the employee or judicial officer is able to pass the daily screening questions.
- A negative test if taken while asymptomatic does not replace the required ten (10) day self-isolation.
 - ❖ Infection can occur at any point during the self-isolation period and the full ten (10) day self-isolation is required.
 - ❖ The contacts reported by the asymptomatic employee may not return to the workplace until ten (10) days following the contact or exposure.
 - ❖ Management should determine whether violating the Supreme Court Order or corresponding protocols, which include ensuring appropriate social and physical distancing warrants corrective measures or communications.
 - ❖ The CEO or their designee must immediately report the test results to the ERT using the electronic Google form.

Unless tested while symptomatic, a negative test result does not end the ten (10) day self-isolation. Infection can occur at any point during the self-isolation period and the full self-isolation period should be completed.

- An employee or judicial officer, who is fully vaccinated, and received a negative coronavirus (COVID-19) test taken when they were no longer exhibiting symptoms, may return to the workplace after being symptom-free for 72-hours without the use of fever-reducing medicine, and is able to pass the daily screening questions.

4. POSITIVE TEST WHILE SYMPTOMATIC OR ASYMPTOMATIC:

If the employee or judicial officer tests positive:

- The chief judge, administrative authority, or designee must report a positive case to the Supreme Court's ERT within two (2) hours of learning of the positive case.

- The employee or judicial officer must:
 - ❖ Self-isolate for fourteen (14) days from the date of the test, Be symptom-free for 72-hours without the use of fever-reducing medicine,
 - ❖ Be able to pass the daily screening questions, and
 - ❖ Receive written approval by the chief judge, administrative authority or designee to reenter the workplace using the NMJB ERT Returning to Work for those who have had Covid-19.
 - ❖ Management should determine whether violating the Supreme Court Order or corresponding protocols, which include ensuring appropriate social and physical distancing warrants corrective measures or communications.
 - ❖ Management may not require a NMDOH clearance (return to work) letter, and should not require a negative test before allowing the employee to return to the workplace. Employees may continue to test positive while still being released by the NMDOH as no longer infectious.
- All courthouses and other judicial buildings must be maintained in accordance with the guidelines issued by the NM Department of Health for the cleaning and disinfection of public facilities during the current public health emergency.

CORONAVIRUS (COVID-19) – EXPOSURE OR CONTACT WITH A POTENTIAL OR CONFIRMED POSITIVE CASE

Confirmed Positive Coronavirus (COVID-19) Case

If an employee or judicial officer who is not fully vaccinated has contact with a confirmed positive coronavirus (COVID-19) case, the employee or judicial officer should begin self-isolation of ten (10) days, and must immediately contact the NMDOH to obtain a coronavirus (COVID-19) test conducted by an approved NMDOH testing site, using appropriate and approved NMDOH tests. The ten (10) days run from the last date the employee or judicial officer has contact with the person with coronavirus (COVID-19). The CEO or designee must report the contact using the electronic Google Form.

- If the employee or judicial officer is fully vaccinated (i.e., two weeks past their second Moderna or Pfizer vaccination, or their first Johnson and Johnson vaccination, as confirmed and verified by human resources), the employee or judicial officer does not have to self-isolate after contact with a confirmed positive coronavirus (COVID-19) case and may return into the workplace unless the employee or judicial officer has coronavirus (COVID-19) symptoms or the contact is with a household member or is cared for by the employee or judicial officer. If the employee or judicial officer has symptoms of coronavirus (COVID-19), they must self-isolate, test, and follow the Emergency Court Protocols for symptomatic employees and judicial officers.

If a judicial officer or employee lives with or cares for someone with a confirmed positive COVID-19 case, the judicial officer or employee must continue to stay in isolation until fourteen (14) days after the positive COVID household member completes their period of self-isolation, regardless of vaccination status; this is a self-isolation period of approximately twenty-eight (28-days) from the date the positive test was taken. The CEO or designee must report if a judicial officer or employee lives with or cares for someone with a confirmed positive coronavirus (COVID-19) case, using the electronic Google Form.

Potential Coronavirus (COVID-19) Case

The CEO or designee must report if contact occurs between a potential COVID-19 infected employee or judicial officer and another person who works for the judiciary, or who works in the court, facility, or judicial property using the electronic Google Form and a follow-up report is required once the test results are received, unless the employee or judicial officer is fully vaccinated, meaning two weeks past their second Moderna or Pfizer vaccination, or their first Johnson and Johnson vaccination, as confirmed and verified by human resources then the employee does not have to self-isolate and may return into the workplace.

If the employee who is unvaccinated did have contact with other court staff either within or outside of the courthouse or judicial building, management should determine whether violating the Supreme Court Order or corresponding protocols, which include ensuring appropriate social and physical distancing warrants corrective measures or communications.

- 1. An employee or judicial officer who is not fully vaccinated has contact with someone who is a potential coronavirus (COVID-19) case must do the following, unless as provided for in the exception outlined above:
 - Immediately self-isolate for ten (10) calendar days from the last date of contact and exposure from that person (e.g., if five (5) days have passed since the employee or judicial officer last had contact or exposure to the possible positive case, then the self-isolation would be for five (5) days, to equal a total of ten (10) days since last contact or exposure) unless:
 - ❖ If the exposure or contact is with a symptomatic person who receives a negative coronavirus (COVID-19) test while symptomatic, the employee or judicial officer may immediately return to the workplace provided they can pass all screening questions.
 - The employee or judicial officer must immediately contact the NMDOH to obtain a coronavirus (COVID-19) test conducted by an approved NMDOH testing site, using appropriate and approved NMDOH tests.
 - Cross-Tracing and Contact: Management must identify all employees or judicial officers in contact with the possible positive employee within the preceding ten (10) days, and send those employees and judicial officers home to telework until the employee's test results are returned (contact is defined as less than six (6) feet for more than three (3) minutes).

- The employee or judicial officer may work from home during the period of self-isolation to the extent that work can be performed remotely, and with the permission of the chief judge, administrative authority, or designee.
- The judicial officer or employee must report if they begin experiencing coronavirus (COVID-19) symptoms to their supervisor and Human Resources immediately, and provide a list of any employees or judicial officers the worker has been in contact with over the preceding ten (10) days.
- If an employee or judicial officer has a positive or pending coronavirus (COVID-19) contact case within their household, please refer to #2 below.

2. If the exposure or contact is with a household member (child, spouse, etc.) who is a potential coronavirus (COVID-19) case:

- If an employee or judicial officer who is not fully vaccinated has a potential coronavirus (COVID-19) case within their household, the employee should begin self-isolation of ten (10) days, and must immediately contact the NMDOH to obtain a coronavirus (COVID-19) test conducted by an approved NMDOH testing site, using appropriate and approved NMDOH tests. The employee should contact the NMDOH to see if the employee and household members should be tested, and continue self-isolating unless the employee or judicial officer's household member's contact's test is confirmed as negative.
- If the test results of the contact (the person the household member came in contact with) are not able to be obtained, the employee or judicial officer should self-isolate for the full ten (10) days.
- If the employee or judicial officer is fully vaccinated meaning two weeks, past their second Moderna or Pfizer vaccination, or their first Johnson and Johnson vaccination, as confirmed and verified by human resources, then the employee does not have to self-isolate and may return into the workplace.
- If the contact of the household member is determined to have been negative, the employee or judicial officer may return to the workplace provided they can pass the daily screening questions.

❖ Example - DAYCARE or SCHOOL CONTACT: For example, if an employee or judicial officer's child's school is closed due to a potential coronavirus (COVID-19) case, the employee or judicial officer, and household members should self-isolate for ten (10) days, or until the person, the child was exposed to receive a negative coronavirus (COVID-19) test. The employee or judicial officer, and household members should take a coronavirus (COVID-19) test administered by an approved NMDOH testing site, using appropriate and approved NMDOH tests. If an employee or judicial officer, is two weeks past their second Moderna or Pfizer vaccination, or their first Johnson and Johnson vaccination, as confirmed and verified by human resources, they are exempted from the required self-isolation period and may return to the workplace.

❖ Example - SPOUSE CONTACT AT PLACE OF EMPLOYMENT: For example, if an employee or judicial officer's spouse is exposed to a potential coronavirus (COVID-19) case, the employee or judicial officer, and household members should self-isolate for ten (10) days, or until the person, the spouse was exposed to receive a negative coronavirus (COVID-19) test. The employee or judicial officer and household members should take a coronavirus (COVID-19) test taken by an approved NMDOH testing site, using appropriate and approved NMDOH tests. However, if an employee or judicial officer are two weeks past their second Moderna or Pfizer vaccination, or their first Johnson and Johnson vaccination, as confirmed and verified by human resources, they are exempted from the required self-isolation period and may return to the workplace.

- If an employee or judicial officer's household member tests positive, and regardless of the employee or judicial officer's vaccination status; the employee or judicial officer must continue to stay in isolation until fourteen (14) days after their positive COVID household member completes their fourteen (14) day period of self-isolation. If the employee or judicial officer test positive, they must follow the protocols for positive tests in section 4 above.

3. If the household member works in the medical field with coronavirus (COVID-19) patients?

- A household member who works in the medical field with a coronavirus (COVID-19) positive patient is not considered a potential case for the purposes of an employee or judicial officer's contact.
- Those who work in the medical field follow stringent protective personal equipment (PPE) requirements, and are not required to self-isolate.
- If the household member who works in the medical field displays coronavirus (COVID-19) symptoms the employee or judicial officer must take a coronavirus (COVID-19) test taken by an approved NMDOH testing site, using appropriate and approved NMDOH tests, and begin the ten (10) day period of self-isolation.
- However, if the household member is confirmed positive with the coronavirus (COVID-19), the employee must take a coronavirus (COVID-19) test taken by an approved NMDOH testing site, using appropriate and approved NMDOH tests, and begin the fourteen (14) day period of self-isolation.

4. What does “came in contact,” “close contact,” or “contact” with someone, mean?

- There is no distinction between close contact, came in contact, or contact.
- All are defined as being less than a minimum of six (6) feet from a potential or confirmed positive case of the coronavirus (COVID-19) for three (3) minutes or more.
- Contact can occur while caring for, living with, visiting, traveling with, or sharing a healthcare waiting area or room with a coronavirus (COVID-19) case; or have been in contact with any secretion of a coronavirus (COVID-19) infected person (e.g., being coughed on).
- Contact for a fully vaccinated employee or judicial officer means being less than a minimum of six (6) feet from a member of the public, including a juror or witness, or an employee or judicial officer who are not fully vaccinated.

5. When does a negative coronavirus (*COVID-19) test replace the ten (10) day self-isolation period?

- If an employee or judicial officer is symptomatic, experiencing coronavirus (COVID-19) related symptoms and is tested immediately upon becoming symptomatic and the test is negative, the employee or judicial officer may return to the workplace after being symptom-free for 72-hours without the use of fever-reducing medicine and provided they are able to pass all daily screening questions.
- If an employee or judicial officer does not get tested while symptomatic, or if they are tested after the symptoms are gone, then they will need to still get tested, and self-isolate for ten (10) days, and not return to the workplace until they have been symptom-free for 72-hours without the use of fever-reducing medicine, and are able to pass all daily screening questions.
- An employee or judicial officer who is not exhibiting coronavirus (COVID-19) symptoms but has had exposure to a positive case MUST self-isolate for fourteen days, and a negative test is not a substitute for the self-isolation (because the employee or judicial officer was tested while asymptomatic).
- The coronavirus (COVID-19 test) must be taken by an approved NMDOH testing site, using appropriate and approved NMDOH tests.

Masks

Emergency Court Protocols

Supreme Court Order No. 20-8500-016

NMDOH Guidance on Masks

CDC Poster: Important Information about your mask

Fully vaccinated judicial officers and employees shall not be required to wear masks unless they have face-to-face interactions with members of the public or are in public areas of the courthouse or judicial building. "Public areas" mean any enclosed indoor area of the courthouse or judicial building open to and frequented by the public, including, but not limited to hallways, lobbies, courtrooms, hearing rooms, libraries, and restrooms. Fully vaccinated judicial officers and employees are not required to wear masks while on court or judicial grounds, including parking areas and other outdoor areas.

Judicial officers and employees who are not fully vaccinated will be required to wear masks and maintain 6 feet physical distance while entering and exiting the building, while on court or judicial entity grounds, including parking areas, and while on paid breaks.

All judicial officers or employees, regardless of vaccination status, who interact face-to-face with members of the public or are in public areas of the courthouse or judicial building shall wear a mask and maintain 6 feet physical distance according to these FAQs. "Face-to-face interaction" means providing assistance to a member of the public, including, but not limited to assistance with filing court documents and screening members of the public, without plexiglass or other barrier between the judicial officer or employee and the member of the public. Judges and staff are required to wear masks according to existing protocols during trials and in-person proceedings, unless an exception to the masking requirement is approved by the Supreme Court Emergency Response Team for specified in-person proceedings pursuant to a plan submitted by a requesting court that explains how such proceedings can be safely carried out without maintaining the masking requirement.

The Judiciary views the mask requirement as a serious matter of public safety. Therefore, any judicial officer or employee shown not to be fully vaccinated and not wearing a mask contrary to court protocols at the time will be subject to a minimum three-day suspension without pay.

Jurors and the public will continue to be required to maintain 6 feet physical distance and wear masks according to existing protocols until further notice. This means double protective masks or other masks authorized below for impaneled jurors and a single layer of a protective mask or face covering for all others (including witnesses, attorneys, voir dire jurors, and the general public). Judicial Districts may submit an exception to the physical distancing requirement by submitting a plan to the ERT explaining how the trial or jury selection can be safely carried out.

Masking in accordance with the Supreme Court protocols includes the following

Vaccination for Coronavirus (COVID-19)

1. What guidance does the ERT have to judicial entities on the coronavirus (COVID-19) vaccination distribution?

- The following website allows judicial officers and employees to pre-register for the vaccination: <https://cvvaccine.nmhealth.org/>.
- Contractors who work inside a court or judicial facility may select "court personnel" when pre-registering for the vaccination.
- Family members may pre-register as well, though dependents under the age of 18 may encounter difficulties pre-registering.
- Chief judges, administrative authority or designee are encouraged to be in touch with local health officials responsible for vaccination distribution.
- However, please do not try to "jump the line" or get in front of those in other phases or groups eligible for vaccination, e.g., health care providers. When vaccinations are available for the court personnel category, the ERT recommends that judicial entities prioritize frontline court personnel.
- Judicial officers and employees who receive the vaccination during working hours may use the COVID-Activities time reporting code in SHARE.

2. Are vaccinations mandatory for judicial officers or employees?

- There is currently no policy mandating vaccinations, but chief judges, administrative authority or designee will be informed if this changes.

3. Do I need to report judicial officers and employees who receive the vaccination?
 - Yes.
 - Please report any judicial officers or employees who receive the vaccination to AOCHRD at aochrd-grp@nmcourts.gov. The ERT will be tracking and monitoring the judiciary's vaccination progress.
 - The identity of those vaccinated or not vaccinated will be confidential.
4. What if someone who gets the vaccination becomes symptomatic?
 - Judicial officers and employees should continue to follow the Supreme Court Emergency Court Protocols and FAQs, and test and self-isolate if they experience the identified COVID-19 symptoms even if they have received the vaccination.
5. Will I need the coronavirus (COVID-19) vaccination even if I'm not in a high-risk group?
 - The NMDOH website states: Yes. While many people with the COVID-19 have only a mild illness, others may get a severe case. There is no way to know in advance how COVID-19 will affect you, even if you are not at an increased risk of severe complication. The COVID-19 vaccination helps protect you by creating an antibody response without having to experience sickness. The sooner most people are vaccinated and protected against COVID-19 disease, the sooner New Mexicans and all Americans can get back to normal life. [<https://cv.nmhealth.org/covid-vaccine/>]

Essential Medical Treatment:

Essential medical treatment includes:

- Routine medical services in response to a complaint or condition identified by the employee or their health care provider,
- Preventative care, including the coronavirus (COVID-19) vaccination, and screening services, and
- Does not include elective treatment or procedures.
- Non-essential health care services, procedures, and surgeries include those, which can be delayed for three months without undue risk to patient health.

Face Coverings:

Face Coverings include all masks that cover the nose and mouth. Plastic face shields are not a substitute for a mask but may be worn in addition to the face covering.

Fully Vaccinated:

A judicial officer or employee is considered fully vaccinated when they are two weeks beyond their second Moderna or Pfizer vaccination, or their first Johnson and Johnson vaccination, as confirmed by submission or presentation of the judicial officer's or employee's vaccination card to human resources.
